No. 114 May 2004

SEAT STATUS

Including notional seat status for Vic, Qld and SA

This edition of Electoral Newsfile includes the seat status for all electoral divisions as a result of the 2001 Federal Election. In addition, the Newsfile includes post redistribution seat status for divisions in States which have undergone redistributions since the 2001 Federal Election.

Redistributions of electoral boundaries

Since the 2001 Federal Election, there have been changes, or redistributions, of electoral boundaries in Victoria, Queensland, South Australia and the Northern Territory.

The redistribution of electoral boundaries in Victoria was triggered in 2002 under the 'seven-year-rule' and was covered in Electoral Newsfile No. 106.

The redistributions in Queensland, South Australia and the Northern Territory were triggered by a change in entitlement to representation. Following this determination made on 19 February 2003, the Australian Electoral Commission (AEC) met on 12 March 2003, to direct the commencement of redistributions in Queensland and South Australia. The Northern Territory did not undergo a redistribution as it reverted to being a single electoral division as a result of the determination made on 19 February 2003. This determination has since been set aside by Parliament, meaning that the Northern Territory will again field two divisions at the next federal election. More details on these redistributions are available in Electoral Newsfile numbers 110, 111 and 112. Divisional and State maps of the new boundaries are available for purchase from the AEC.

Notional seat status

Following the conclusion of the redistribution process, the AEC has calculated the seat status of the new electoral divisions, ie which party would have won the seats on the new boundaries had the 2001 voting patterns been repeated. These calculations will be used within the AEC's computer network at the next election, and in particular on election night, in order to determine swings. For example, votes received by candidates contesting the next federal election in Queensland will be compared against the 'notional' 2001 votes following the redistribution and not against the actual 2001 votes.

How is status defined?

Seat status is based on the two-party preferred vote (TPP). The two-party preferred vote refers to the number of votes received by the leading Labor and Liberal/National Party candidates after a full distribution of preferences. In the Independently held seats of Calare, New England and Kennedy a separate count of ballot papers was held to determine a TPP result.

By convention, when a party receives less than 56% of the vote the seat is classified as 'marginal' (M); between 56-59% it is classified as 'fairly safe' (FS) and more than 60% is considered 'safe' (S).

How is the TPP calculated after a redistribution?

The estimated voting pattern of a redistributed electoral division is calculated by adjusting the percentage of votes cast at each polling place to take account of the position of the new boundaries.

2002/2003 REDISTRIBUTIONS

Since the 2001 election there have been redistributions in Victoria, Queensland and South Australia. The Division of Burke in VIC was abolished to create a new outer metropolitan division to the west of Melbourne named the Division of Gorton. Queensland gained a division which is known as Bonner and the Division of Bonython was abolished in SA.

The Northern Territory did not undergo a redistribution as it reverted to being a single electoral division as a result of the determination made on 19 February 2003. This determination has since been set aside by Parliament, meaning that the Northern Territory will again field two divisions at the next federal election.
